Transform your meetings in the serenity of Hunter Valley Wine Country.

Welcome

The Hunter Valley has a remarkable heritage, with pioneering vine experts, long-standing wine families, and renowned wines.

This is the very place where the foundations of Australian grape cultivation and winemaking were laid. In the early 1820s, the first modest vineyards, each about 20 acres in size, were established along the northern banks of the Hunter River trade route.

Australia's earliest wine-producing families rapidly expanded into the nearby hill country, tending to over 500acres of vineyards. By the lively 1920s, this region had firmly established itself as a centre for top-tier wine production.
